Beverly Hills, Calif. (January 23, 2009) – The L.A. Dodgers acquisition of slugger Manny Ramirez and his monumental impact on and off the field -- the phenomenon that became known as “Mannywood” -- was named the top sports moment of 2008 at the 4th annual L.A. Sports Awards, presented by the Los Angeles Sports Council.

On July 31, just minutes before baseball’s trade deadline, the Dodgers acquired Ramirez from Boston. The future Hall of Famer proceeded to bat .396 with 17 home runs and 53 RBIs in the season’s final two months, leading the team to the National League Championship Series for the first time in twenty years.

Sporting uniform #99 beneath his famous dreadlocks, Ramirez’ engaging style and winning attitude inspired his teammates and captivated the city.

Ramirez and the Dodgers were honored at a star-studded awards presentation held tonight at The Beverly Hilton.

The L.A. Sports Awards were created by the Sports Council in 2005 to recognize the year’s biggest and best moments in sports in the Los Angeles/Orange County area.
